Cononus Selected to Safeguard Western Governors University's Core Systems and Network Infrastructure

SALT LAKE CITY -- AllWaysOn™ Data center, Risk Management and IT managed services company Cononus and Western Governors University have agreed on a 5-year partnership to host WGU's technology application infrastructure.

Cononus is safeguarding WGU's high-tech systems and vital network in its South data center. WGU's servers interface with thousands of students in 50 states and 10 foreign countries. The university's core systems and network infrastructure will be protected from security threats and natural disasters within Cononus' highly redundant facility, which includes multi-level security, massive back-up power for emergencies and base isolation to sustain operations in a 7.5 magnitude earthquake.

Cononus operates with a unique blend of security expertise, best practices, and world class, disaster-proof data centers and technology systems in six states; Utah, Colorado, Ohio, Texas, Indiana and Arizona. "We are very excited to maintain Western Governors University's applications and systems reliability within the Cononus infrastructure. Our high availability data centers and risk management solutions will safeguard the university's mission critical applications and ensure 100 percent uptime delivery to their students and faculty members," says Cononus COO Daniel Milburn.

The Cononus partnership comes as WGU also upgrades storage and delivery systems with Sun Microsystems and Qwest. WGU president Robert Mendenhall says this is a crucial step for WGU, which continues to grow at a rapid rate. The university saw a 60 percent increase in enrollment and the number of graduates increased more than 200 percent in the past year. "We choose Cononus' tier4 facility specifically to ensure 100 percent systems availability to our students and faculty. No other provider in the Intermountain states could compete with their high availability design and reputation for truly delivering 100 percent uptime," said Bob Mendenhall.

Cononus has also become a member of the WGU National Advisory Board, joining 22 other major corporations and foundations which support WGU.
